Summer Internship

The Joint Vienna Institute (JVI), located in Vienna, Austria, is offering a short-term consultant position / summer internship for a Ph.D. student in economics, who has strong data and econometrics skills. While the exact dates over the summer period are negotiable, the minimum period is 10 weeks.

The JVI is an independent international organization created in 1992 by the Austrian Authorities, the International Monetary Fund (IMF) and several other international organizations. Its objective is to train public sector officials from countries in Central, Eastern and South-Eastern Europe, the Commonwealth of Independent States, and selected other countries.

Prime tasks of the summer intern include setting-up a database with key macroeconomic variables; supporting the Director and Deputy Director with the preparation of lectures and workshops; supporting curriculum development and relevant policy analyses as well as participating in other JVI activities.

Qualifications
Applicants should currently be studying for a Ph.D. in economics and have strong knowledge of econometrics, including EViews and Stata. Excellent Powerpoint and English language skills are essential. German language skills are desirable, but not required.

If interested, please send your application — concise cover letter (less than one page), CV (max. 2 pages), list of publications, copy of Master / Diploma certificate — in English by e-mail to Ms. Helene Roselstorfer at hroselstorfer@jvi.org, with a copy to Mr. Daniel Stirrat (dstirrat@jvi.org). The deadline for applications is May 22.
